

Christmas 2007

*O morning stars, together
Proclaim the holy birth,
And praises sing to God the King,
And peace to men on earth!*

Merry Christmas!

This year we have camped at Girraween, and have enjoyed some cabin camping at New England National Park and Nymboida. We also had a pre-Christmas break at Bargara Beach near Bundaberg.

Peter continues to enjoy the flexibility of self-employment with writing software. He has also spent lots of time in the garden building rock garden beds and retaining walls.

We are expecting another baby at the end of January! Elizabeth has been busy rearranging the bedrooms, and preparing to submit her thesis by Christmas.

Best wishes to you at Christmas, and peace and contentment in the New Year.

Acrylics and glitter on cardboard

To complete the "Marbellous Christmas" series, Felix placed cardboard and blobs of paint in a baking tray, and rolled marbles to spread the paint.

About the artist: Felix likes to rise between 5 and 6 am most days for painting, gluing and stickers. He also enjoys books, walking and running, climbing and balancing, and helping Mum and Dad. This year, Felix started to speak much more, and grew over 10 cm.
